

Caring for your gynecological health at every stage of your life.

From puberty to menopause and beyond, your health-care needs change, but one thing remains constant: the importance of addressing gynecological issues as part of your overall health.

At Rutgers Robert Wood Johnson Medical Group, our specialists provide expert, compassionate care to meet each of those changing needs. And, because each of our physicians is a faculty member of Rutgers Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, they remain on the cusp of the latest clinical advances, research, and technology, should those needs turn from the routine to something much more specialized.

At the heart of it all, we remain focused on providing the kind of individualized care every woman needs and deserves. Because each person's experience—whether with puberty, pregnancy, menopause, or countless other women's health issues—is unique, we never lose sight of YOU.

At Rutgers Robert Wood Johnson Medical Group's Department of Obstetrics, Gynecology and Reproductive Services, you'll find more than three dozen specialists in all aspects of women's health. We provide a continuum of care for women, enhanced by the fact that we're part of one of the largest multispecialty physician practices in the state, with more than 520 physicians in 200-plus specialties and subspecialties.

Obstetric Care

Our practice includes more than a dozen board-certified obstetricians, a certified women's health nurse practitioner, and an obstetric nurse coordinator to help guide you from your preconception visit to prenatal care and through the delivery and postpartum period. We are committed to providing you with the clinical expertise, information, and support you need for a happy, healthy pregnancy.

Our office has on-site ultrasound, performed and read by high-risk pregnancy specialists, who will review your test with you at the time it is performed, providing recommendations and guidance. Our genetic counselors are available to discuss issues ranging from screening for Down syndrome to specific exposures or inheritable risks.

One of our obstetricians is "on call" at all times at Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital, where we perform all our deliveries—and where you'll have access to our team of specialists at the Regional Perinatal Center at The Bristol-Myers Squibb Children's Hospital at RWJ, should any emergencies arise.
